Stubborn Chocolate Stains

Special holiday treats — the traditional box of Christmas chocolates or a dessert topped with chocolate syrup — often call for special treatment after the party's over.

Chocolate stains are usually no problem if given proper attention, say textile chemists of the U. S. Department of Agricultural Research Service.

If the fabric is washable, sponge the stain with cool water or soak it for 30 minutes or longer. If the stain remains, work detergent into it, then rinse thoroughly and allow the article to dry. Use a grease solvent to remove any remaining greasy stain. If colored stain remains after the fabric dries, use a chlorine or sodium perborate bleach or hydrogen peroxide. Be sure to use a bleach that is safe for the fabric and dye.

If the fabric is not washable, sponge the stain with cool water or force cool water through it with a small syringe. Use a sponge under the stain to absorb the water. If the stain persists, rub detergent on it and work the detergent into the fabric. Rinse the spot well with water. A greasy stain can be removed in the same way as directed for washable articles.

Caution: Fumes from all grease solvents are toxic. Use only with adequate ventilation. Some solvents are also flammable. Read label and follow carefully any precautions listed.

Decorating Problem

If you have a long narrow room to decorate use color, good design, and a lot of imagination as your tools.

Use light colors on the walls to make them seem to recede and to minimize numerous openings and irregular wall sections. Don't crowd a narrow room. Choose small scale, dual purpose furniture. Small sofas used at right angles to one another in the center of the room help break its length and emphasize the widening lines. Heavy, bulky textures and shiny fabrics add mirror on a long wall, a picture, or a section of design wallpaper can give visual depth. Be sure the design of the wallpaper does not add to your problem rather than help solve it.

Take Care of Suede

Suede clothes are increasing in popularity — and to get the most for your money, suede must be given proper care.

Suede garments should be cleaned by cleaners who specialize in handling leathers. If you are careful, suede shouldn't need to be cleaned more than once a year. Protect the garment by wearing a scarf to keep the collar clean. Brush or sponge it (with a specially treated sponge) after each wearing to keep the nap soft and to clean minor spots. When using the special brush or sponge on suede, use a circular motion. If a shiny spot appears, you can use a very fine sandpaper or an emery board to raise the nap. If suede becomes discolored, prepared color dressings will restore the color.

Hang suede on padded hangers in a cool closet. Do not cover with a plastic bag. Heat and lack of air circulation will dry out the leather and make it hard and brittle.

Suede garments can be pressed at home with a warm, dry iron if heavy brown paper is used between the iron and the leather.

If you get caught in the rain, let the suede dry naturally at room temperature. Brush or sponge gently.

Suede accessories can be restyled commercially, Miss McClaskey notes.

Use scissors to cut candied cherries, marshmallows, dates, raisins, or coconut. When the scissors begin to get sticky, dip them in warm water.

A layer of buttered chopped nuts on top of your fruit pie just before baking will give it a delicious taste.

Garden Club Tea

Mrs. Howlette Martin entertained during the holidays with a tea for Appomattox Garden Club members. Seen above is the dining room table set with silver punch bowl and coffee service. Miss Erna Dickerson, of Richmond, and sister of Mrs. Martin stands to the left of Mrs. Martin with a guest. Mrs. Tom Richardson, of Appomattox, on the right. The center decoration is a Christmas tree made by Miss Dickerson from green nylon net. Party foods, punch and coffee made up the tasty refreshments served by Mrs. Martin and her sisters, Mrs. E. H. Frazier, of Altavista. Mrs. R. K. Lawson and Mrs. H. C. Babcock, both of Lynchburg, plus Mrs. Mary Collins. Exhibits and Awards chairman of the local club. Approximately 25 guests were received during the afternoon.

Pastor Says

The Christian and His Happiness

This caption was the heading of a recent article by the leader of the largest publishing companies in the world. It struck me as being rather trite — why shouldn't Christians be happy? As a matter of fact why shouldn't they? But from outward appearances many are not. It appears abnormal to many and to some downright sinful to be optomistic about life.

But the Log Book of life, the Bible, teaches that Christians are happy people. "Blessed" or "to be congratulated" are the poor in Spirit, for theirs of this kind is the kingdom of Heaven". (Matt. 5:3. John, the beloved apostle wrote in one of his letters, I John 1:4. "These things write I unto you that your joy may be full" (complete).

It is true that Christians must be serious, and capable of having solomen thoughts about the realities of life. But at the same time they are not to be morose about righteousness and truth. After all, happiness, like faith and love is an attitude. Attitudes color conversation; they are reflected in every activity. The Christian has every right to be happy. He does not exist in a routine of eating, sleeping and breathing activity alone; but rather in an existence full of the abundance of eternity. He will live on into eternity.

So contrary to some public opinion that churches are dull. Christian people are colorless and adamant, they are not. Love for God, for their fellowman, and service to others causes the "cords of life" to vibrate with meaning and therefore happiness. It is true that lonliness and the recesses of life are experienced by Christians — why shouldn't they — others do! But the Christians have this attitude. Thus it holds in life's serious hours.

Sometimes the "holy smile" characterized by some Christians, does leave a feeling of drabness and gloom on us. Some have just enough "religion" to make them miserable. But the vast majority of Christians I have known, have been those who have a radiance and happiness which makes them the kind of people I like to know.

With the closing out of the Old Year and the New One looking us in the face, let's sharpen our attitude in this direction, and walk across this new year with more of the happiness and radiance of which we are capable of having.

Happy New Year,
O. D. Moore, Pastor
Liberty Baptist Church

Clubs Endorse 1-Way Test

Two organizations in the Appomattox High School have endorsed the "4-Way Test", a code for honorable behavior being publicized by several other organizations throughout the United States, according to officers of the Beta Club of AHS.

In connection with this, Donald Hamilton, reporter for the Beta Club, submitted the following information to the TIMES in response to an inquiry about the purpose and nature of the Beta Club:

"The National Beta Club is a nonprofit, nonsecret, leadership - service organization for high school students.

It was founded in the autumn of 1933 and chartered August 31, 1936 under the laws of the State of South Carolina. Only a school accredited by its State Department of Education can obtain a charter for a local chapter.

The purpose of the National Beta Club is to stimulate effort, reward achievement, and to encourage and assist its members to continue their education after high school.

The qualifications of individual membership in the Beta Club are worthy character, good mentality, creditable achievement, and commendable attitude. Prospective members must be approved by the head of the local high school. Every students is eligible provided he meets the general qualifications of the Constitution. Membership in the Beta Club does not make it necessary for a student to alter his religious, social, or political ideas and affiliations. He is not required to take an oath. He merely subscribes to the Beta Club pledge when he is inducted.

As a member of the National Beta Club one receives recognition of scholastic achievement and leadership - service, membership in a national organization, a certificate of membership, a membership pin, a magazine each month, a gold diploma seal, access to the Beta Education Loan Fund, and inspiration and encouragement to raise his goals and work toward them.

Year End Review

The Appomattox Rescue Squad put their ambulance into "round-the-clock" service in January, 1962, and thus became an independent, working organization. The Squad was the outgrowth of a Jaycee project, and Captain Kenneth Jamerson gives much credit to Jaycees including John Garrett for the success of the venture.

Calls during the year have included heart attacks, falls, automobile accidents, burn victims— and one little girl who came into this world in '62 as her mother was being rushed by Rescue Squad ambulance to a hospital.

For the first time in county history, television became a regular teaching aid in 7th and 8th grade science classes.

Looking Ahead

For tobacco growers, says County Agent Jim Smith, the coming year will see emphasis placed on quality, rather than quantity.

The townspeople of Appomattox now own an additional piece of land on which to expand their sewage facilities, when the need arises, because of a purchase made by Town Council in November.

The Rescue Squad hopes to buy an additional vehicle, and possibly to lay definite plans for housing for their equipment.

The County School Board hopes to go ahead with additional classrooms for Carver High School.

Best Furniture Company has made tentative plans to enlarge their building for additional display and storage room.

It would seem to the TIMES staff, at least, that the general air is one of optimism.

Each school child in the county has received an important book to keep during the new year, but a book which school officials hope WILL NOT be needed, except to use for reference and information. Soon, possibly, in building a fallout shelter, and stocking it with emergency supplies.

This booklet gives in detail exactly what one should do in the event of a nuclear attack, and is issued by the Department of Defense.

Many Thanks

In their Christmas greeting to customers WILKES JEWELERS Appomattox, said "many thanks" for giving them the opportunity to serve their friends.

The TIMES VIRGINIAN say "many thanks" to WILKES for being so understanding about an error in their ad! In a season where good cheer and fellowship abound, they have displayed a generous supply of good will in excusing the TIMES for the error, and in planning ahead for another year of advertising products and service for customers' needs.
